The Medical Law and Healthcare Practice Group of Raja, Darryl & Loh offers the knowledge and unique expertise of an experienced medico-legal team within the setting of a full service legal firm. Being committed to communication, efficiency, pro-activeness and zealous advocacy, we believe that our clients should benefit from our unique practical understanding of the discipline of medicine, its related industries and the contacts that we have established with various medical associations and regulatory bodies.

Experience

Litigation

The team's lawyers, who bring with them the experience of general commercial litigators, represent medical practitioners in various disciplines accused of clinical malpractice. The cases we have handled include cases involving allegations of misdiagnosis, surgical mishaps and the use of controversial drugs and obstetrics.

Medical Ethics

We are constantly involved in matters pertaining to medical ethics and have represented medical practitioners in disciplinary inquiries held by the Malaysian Medical Council established under the Ministry of Health. Such matters include allegations concerning medical treatment, medical examinations, HIV testing and advertising rules.

Pharmaceuticals and Medical Devices

Quite apart from representing medical professionals, we have also advised pharmaceutical companies and manufacturers of medical devices on matters relating to statutory, regulatory and ethical requirements.

Commercial Advice

Our work extends to advising and preparing contracts involving various healthcare institutions, the setting up of a private medical college, the establishment and operation of a nursing school and advising on business arrangements for cosmetic surgery packages.

Medical Law Advocacy

The partners of this Practice Group are frequently invited to deliver papers and participate in discussions relating to medical law and healthcare issues in the country. We have delivered papers at the invitation of the Institute of Judicial and Legal Services, the Malaysian Private Hospitals Association and the Bar Council of Malaysia. One of our partners lectures annually at the medico-legal course conducted in one of the institutions of higher learning in Malaysia.
